Misty Fields:

Jim grew up in Louisiana, went to school at LSU and loves watching LSU play football. Jim graduated in 1989 with a Mechanical Engineering degree. After school he went into the Navy and began to fly. Jim spent 11 years in active duty with the Navy and then another 9 years in the reserves. He was stationed in Hawaii, Oklahoma, and Pensacola. During his time in the reserves he served in Bahrain, Iraq and Egypt. While in the reserves he also began to work as an airline pilot for United Airlines.

Jim has worked for United Airlines for over 20 years. He has flown the 767, International flight and now the 737 which stay national. Working as an airline pilot has not always been as glamorous as most people think. Jim has to spend a lot of time away from home and he has even worked in Chicago while living in Tampa Florida with his family. But Jim said that his job is fairly routine and the most difficult part of his job is dealing with the passengers. He said planes have become so much more reliable in recent years that this is no longer a big concern for him.

In 2014 Jim and his family moved to Winchester, this put him close to Dulles airport so his commute was a one hour drive and not a flight across the country.

Jim and his wife Susan have 2 grown boys, Jacob and Michael. Jacob is 25 and is a baseball coach in New Mexico. Michael is 23 and a student at JMU in Harrisonburg, VA.

Jim and his wife enjoy traveling together and they even try to plan at least 2 trips each year. They have been to Munich, Barcelona, Paris, London and Rome to name a few. Playing golf together is not something that has happened yet, but his wife is at least in the "thinking about it" stage, so there is hope for that to come.

Jim started playing golf in 1986, the year he watched Jack Nicolas win the Masters. He was inspired by this great golfer to pick up the game and give it a try. He played for a while but kids and life got in the way, as they always do, and he picked his clubs back up in 2017 after a long break and found his way to Rock Harbor. There has been no looking back this time. He finds the course to be a constant challenge and he plays in most all the events that he can from members leagues to tournaments to member outings. His favorite hole is Boulder 9, he likes the different options of the hole. He does not like Rock 6 because the green is too hard to get close to the hole, his advice – don't go to the back of the green!

Interesting fact about Jim: In 1988 he was part of a Sports Trivia Game Show team that was playing on ESPN, he was representing LSU. His team won two games but did not go on to the finals. It was a great experience for him and he even has the VHS Tape to prove it.

You may want to challenge Jim to a little sports trivia, it could be fun to see just how much you both know.
